

Julyan Davis

Julyan Davis is an English-born artist who has painted the American South for over twenty five years. He received his art training at the Byam Shaw School of Art in London. In 1988, having completed his B.A. in painting and printmaking, he traveled to the South on a painting trip that was also fueled by an interest in the history of Demopolis, Alabama and it's settling by Bonapartist exiles.

Davis now lives in Asheville, North Carolina. His work is exhibited internationally, and is in numerous public and private collections. Recent acquisitions include the Gibbes Museum in Charleston, SC, The Greenville Museum of Art, SC, The Morris Museum, Augusta, GA, and the North Carolina Governor's Mansion and Western Residence.

His newest work, interpreting traditional American ballads through the contemporary South, has been touring museums with accompanying lectures and musical performances.
